Freshman Assembly

Classroom and Campus

Ring Out the Old

OLD LISNER HALL has disappeared from the scene. The aged edifice which for so many years was a familiar campus landmark has fallen before the wrecking crew. And while a certain sentiment clings around Old Lisner in the memories of thousands of students and alumni who have attended classes and chapel exercises and studied in the library there, actually none mourns its passing. For rising to take its place is a fine new library, the gift of the late Abram Lisner.

It was Mr. Lisner's generosity that made possible acquisition of Old Lisner by the University twenty-six years ago, and one of the last acts of his life was to examine and approve plans for the modern building which is to replace it.

In 1912 when the University took over Lisner Hall it was for that time a not unimposing structure, and its size and facilities were not notably disproportionate to University requirements. Long since outmoded and outgrown, it yet served well through a period of need.

When the building was erected in 1880 to house St. Rose's Industrial School, and for many years thereafter, the vicinity was the heart of Washington's fashionable "First Ward." Along F and G Streets from Seventeenth to Twenty-third, embassies and legations were located and Government officials and officers of the Army and Navy had built fine homes. Later many of these old homes were taken over by the University and converted to classroom use. Lisner Hall was the last of the old buildings along the G Street side of the University Quadrangle to be torn down. Others disappeared in 1935 and in 1936 to make way for the Biological Science Building and the Social Science Hall.

The story of these homes and the romance surrounding the University locale, which was once the independent town of Hamburg, and which was the section of the city George Washington selected as the location for the university he hoped to see grow up in the Nation's Capital, has been told by Mrs. Joshua Evans, Jr., alumna and member of the Board of Trustees, in a booklet published three years ago by the General Alumni Association. With the last of the old buildings now gone, this booklet preserves an interesting chapter in the University's and the city's past.

Ring in the New

"The members of the Library staff, who in the past have worked under great difficulties, are looking forward with keen anticipation to the opportunities for service in the new building," according to John Russell Mason, Librarian of the University.

Says Librarian Mason: "The library is the laboratory for the whole University and as such plays a vital role in the edu-tional scheme. During the past academic year there was a recorded circulation of 139,883 volumes in our present temporary reading rooms—indication of the extent of the demands for library service which must be met. Excellent library service is an absolute necessity.

"Excellent library service, however, is dependent not only on modern physical equipment such as Mr. Lisner's splendid gift will provide, but on a well-selected and up-to-date collection of books and journals, a professional staff adequate to the size of the library and, above all, the cooperation of all the members of the University community. We are counting much on the Alumni members and the 'Friends of the Library' association in the development of the resources of the library."

On the first floor of the new library will be the reserve reading room, the periodical room and the Columbian browsing room. The main reading room, two stories high, will occupy part of the second and third floors. On the second floor in addition to the reading room will be the card catalogue and bibliography room, the delivery room, the cataloguing room and the Librarian's office. The bindery, typewriting room and the staff rooms will be located on the third floor. Leading from this floor will be the corridor connecting the library with the two flanking buildings, the Biological Science Building and the Social Science Hall. On the fourth floor will be eleven seminar rooms. The Graduate Council room, study cubicles and the meeting room for the Board of Trustees will occupy the fifth and sixth floors. Taking up the entire east side of the building, from the basement through the fourth floor, will be the book stack.

It is hoped that the new library will be completed and ready for occupancy by fall.

Hall of Government

With the opening of the academic year in September the University occupied the Hall of Government.

Modern classic in design, and constructed of limestone with aluminum trim, the new Hall is an ornament to the campus; and with its sixteen classrooms providing a total seating capacity of 2150, and eighteen Faculty offices, it greatly augments the University's physical facilities.

The largest room, seating 308, is used for public lectures and assemblies as well as for classes. Offices house the Dean and Assistant Dean of the School of Government and members of the Faculty of the Departments of Political Science, Economics, History and Business Administration.

The interior of the building is finished throughout in the gray-green which has been developed especially for the University buildings—a shade which has been shown through experimentation to give excellent light reflection without glare. Drapes of mohair dyed to match the walls curtain the spacious windows. Floors in the classrooms are of green linoleum and, in the corridors, of linoleum tile in green and black.

Cornerstone-Laying

Mrs. Henry Alvah Strong and her son, Mr. L. Corrin Strong, in tribute to whom his mother gave the Hall of Government, were the guests of honor at the Constitution Day Convocation on May 18, when the cornerstone of the Hall was laid.

Mrs. Strong participated in the ceremony, spreading cement with the silver trowel she had used at cornerstone-layings of five other buildings erected at various institutions through her benefactions.

The massive cornerstone, weighing 2798 pounds, and one of the largest ever laid, was set in place with the ancient and symbolic rites of Masonry. In conducting the ceremonies the Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons of the District of Columbia used the same gavel which George Washington employed in 1793 in the ceremony of the laying of the cornerstone of the United States Capitol.

Deposited in the copper box sealed within the cornerstone were: The Holy Bible, the Masonic Code of the District of Columbia, the Masonic Calendar of the District of Columbia, the Annual Report for 1937 of the Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons, the Constitution of the United States with portraits of the signers, the proclamation of the President of the United States for the observance of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the adoption of the Constitution, the University Catalogue for 1938-39, THE GEORGE WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY ALUMNI REVIEW for May 1938, the University Hatchet for May 17, 1938; photographs of Mrs. Henry Alvah Strong and Mr. L. Corrin Strong, photographs of the buildings of the University, the program of the exercises in celebration of Constitution Day, and copies of the Washington Herald, the Daily News, the Washington Post, the Evening Star and the Washington Times for May 18, 1938.

President Cloyd H. Marvin gave the principal address, gratefully acknowledging on behalf of the University "this enduring gift in the development of good citizenship through the study of constitutional government."

Other speakers at the ceremonies were President Hugh H. Clegg of the General Alumni Association, President William Rochelle of the student body, Dr. William S. Culbertson and Dr. Wilson Compton.

On behalf of the Trustees, Faculty, Alumni and students of the University the following testimonial to Mrs. Strong was read by Dr. Harry C. Davis, Secretary of the Board of Trustees, and an engrossed copy presented to her:

To Hattie M. Strong, generous giver of timely and well-considered gifts, through whose substance all members of the University have gained enrichment of life and enlargement of hope, builder of a sheltering home and a cheerful hearth which generations of University women will gratefully enjoy, faithful counsellor in all the tasks of University administration, leader of constructive purpose and practical power in the great enterprise of establishing on firm foundations a School of Government in the capital city of our nation in the year that marks the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the adoption of the Constitution of the United States—

We, the undersigned members of The George Washington University, united in deep and cordial gratitude, offer this testimonial of our recognition that you have upheld us with your own free spirit and have quickened in us the vision that these halls, wherewith you have liberated us from hard limitations, will be filled throughout long years to come with the ardor and animation of youth moving with fresh strength and singing with new hopes, and that our beloved University, gaining power as it harvests the years, will forever be stirred with fervent devotion to the service of the ideals of free representative government and free intellectual research.

Following the ceremonies Mrs. Strong and Mr. and Mrs. L. Corrin Strong were guests of honor at a reception, planned as a surprise to Mrs. Strong and her son in appreciation of her gift to the University of the Hall of Government. It took place at the Hattie M. Strong Residence Hall for Women, also the gift of Mrs. Strong.

Earlier in the day University officials made a pilgrimage to Mount Vernon to place a wreath on the tomb of Washington. In the company which went to the shrine were Mrs. Strong and Mr. L. Cor-rin Strong; President Cloyd H. Marvin; Dr. Harry C. Davis, Mr. Henry Parsons Erwin and Captain Chester Wells, of the Board of Trustees; Dr. W. Reed West, Assistant Dean of the School of Government; Dean William C. Van Vleck, of the Law School, and other representatives of the Faculty and student body.

Auditorium

As soon as the President and Trustees of the University complete acquisition of the site, work will begin on the erection of the auditorium, made possible by Mr. Lisner's $750,000 bequest for that purpose.

Meanwhile, President Marvin is working with the architects on plans for the building.

George Washington Memorial Funds

At the request of the trustees of the George Washington Memorial Association, Justice Oscar Luhring, in District Court, on July 24 signed an order permitting dissolution of the Association and enabling the organization to turn over to the University the funds which it had in hand.

In their petition to the Court, the trustees explained that their desire to give the funds to the University was owing to "the character and high standing of its scholastic work, because of its location in the National Capital and because said university bears the name of George Washington." Through this step, they stated, the desires of the contributors of the fund would best be fulfilled.

As a result of this action there has come to the University the sum of $170,000. These funds will be added to the Lisner bequest for the erection of the auditorium.

The George Washington Memorial Association, incorporated forty years ago, had as its purpose the erection in the Nation's Capital of an auditorium as a memorial to George Washington. Persons throughout the country contributed to the project.

In 1913 Congress granted the Association a tract of land between Sixth and Seventh Streets on what is now Constitution Avenue. Work on the structure was started eight years later, but subsequently was abandoned. The site has now been turned over to the National Gallery of Art.

Dean McKinley

Bound for the Philippine Islands and China, where he was to continue his leprosy research and, en route, to undertake certain investigations in the new science of aerobiology, Dr. Earl Baldwin McKinley, since 1931 Dean of the School of Medicine, was a passenger aboard the Hawaii Clipper which disappeared at sea July 28.

While all hope for the lost clipper is of course long since abandoned, official expressions on the part of the University and action permanently to fill the post of Dean will await final statement concerning the disaster by the Department of Commerce.

The Academy of Medicine of Washington honored Dean McKinley at a session held on his forty-fourth birthday anniversary, September 28. Tribute was paid him as a distinguished scientist, medical educator and physician, by Dr. Harry Hampton Donnally, Professor of Pediatrics in the School of Medicine.

Dr. Donnally gave an outline of Dean McKinley's life and work from the time of his student days at the University of Michigan, and said of him:

"His place cannot be readily filled for a long time. The next few years will prove how much George Washington will miss the leaven of science worked up by Dr. McKinley. . . .

"He was an inspiring leader and did many things to advance the school, to enrich its student life and to stimulate accomplishment by men composing the Faculty. He was enthusiastic and sympathetic for our scientific aspirations and ambitions.

"He lived the adventurous life, explicitly so, and lost his life a martyr to scientific endeavor."

Acting Dean

Dr. Walter A. Bloedorn, Professor of Medicine, Assistant Dean of the School of Medicine and Medical Director of the University Hospital, was appointed August 25 as Acting Dean of the School of Medicine, having consented to serve for the time being in that capacity in the emergency created by the absence of Dean McKinley.

Dr. Bloedorn has been a member of the medical Faculty since 1926.

Women's Building

A movement to raise funds for the erection of the proposed women's activities building is being sponsored by student and alumnae groups who already are actively engaged in fund raising.

Adding another to the long list of projects undertaken in behalf of the women of the University, Columbian Women on November 5 held a card party and musical at the Wardman Park Hotel, proceeds of which will form the nucleus of the building fund.

Mortar Board, the senior women's honor society, has adopted as its service program for the year the promotion and encouragement of this objective and will give one event each month during the academic year to raise money for the building. The Women's Athletic Association, the Panhellenic Association, and alumnae groups of Panhellenic and independent women also are making plans to further the project.

Preliminary plans for the building were drawn up some time ago under the direction of President Marvin.

The building as planned will serve not only students of the University but women graduates and women members of the Faculty, accommodating a large number of activities, recreational and social, as well as sports. It will provide the most modern facilities for the Department of Physical Education for Women, the activities of the Women's Athletic Association, and the women's intramural sports program.

There will be a main gymnasium large enough for basketball, a smaller student gymnasium for games such as badminton and volleyball, and a small gymnasium for the use of alumnae and Faculty women; a dance studio with a small stage; also a full-size swimming pool with gallery and dressing room, showers and lockers.

Other sports will be accommodated in the archery range, bowling alleys, squash court, handball court and fencing room.

Here will be located the offices and classrooms of the Department of Physical Education for Women and the offices of the Director of Women's Personnel Guidance.

In the medical unit will be the offices and examining room of the University Physician for Women and a corrective gymnasium.

Recreational and social features of the building will include club rooms for Mortar Board, the Panhellenic Council, the Women's Athletic Association and other student and alumnae groups; lounges with kitchenettes, a cafeteria, a browsing room and rest room. On the roof will be a solarium, deck for games and promenade.

The building will form a part of the women's group on the University campus which was started by Mrs. Strong with her gift of a women's residence hall which was opened two years ago.

Inter-American Conference

Can the United States retain Latin American trade and cultural relations against German, Italian and Japanese competition? This question, of vital and growing importance to the American people, will be the topic for discussion at the winter conference of the Inter-American Center of the University.

Men prominent in educational, governmental and economic organizations which are concerned with inter-American relations will be the speakers at the meetings, to be held the evenings of December 6, 7 and 8 in the auditorium of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Those on the program are: December 6—G. Grant Mason, Jr., member of the United States Civil Aeronautics Authority; Senator Theodore F. Green of Rhode Island, member of the Foreign Relations Committee of the United States Senate; and Max O'Rell Truitt, member of the United States Maritime Commission. December 7—the Honorable William R. Castle, former Under Secretary of State; Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, regent of the Georgetown University School of Foreign Service; and Dr. Arthur Deerin Call, permanent executive secretary of the United States Group of the Interparliamentary Union, secretary of the American Peace Society and editor of World Affairs. December 8—Warren L. Pierson, president of the Export-Import Bank; P. M. Haight, secretary-treasurer of International General Electric Company; and William K. Jackson, vice president of the United Fruit Company.

Each speech will be followed by general discussion led by a panel of experts.

Homecoming

A rally in the University Yard Wednesday night, November 23, the game between George Washington and West Virginia on Thanksgiving Day and the Homecoming ball at the Willard Hotel that night were features of the 1938 Homecoming celebration.

In addition to the main events, a round of parties and alumni gatherings of various University groups was scheduled to take place during Homecoming, as were the traditional decoration of the fraternity houses and the presentation of the University Sweetheart, elected by vote of the student body.

The program for the reception and entertainment of old grads was arranged by a committee headed by George W. Neville, LL.B. 29, as chairman. Alumni Secretary Smith was secretary-treasurer of the committee which included also as alumni members: Walter Rhinehart, A.B. 35; Ludwig Caminita, Jr., B.S. 34, A.M. 37; William F. Dismar, Jr., A.B. 31; Charles Stofberg, A.B. in Ed. 33; and Max Farrington, B.S. in P.E. 33, A.M. 34.

Law Program

An extended program of research in the field of public law was inaugurated by the Law School this fall. Coincidentally, the George Washington Law Review was expanded from a quarterly to a monthly, to be published eight times a year, from November through June.

Advanced seminars are being conducted in the Law School in Administrative Law, Constitutional Law, Government Corporations and Trade Regulation. The eight issues of the Law Review are to be coordinated with this work, significant materials produced in the seminars being published by the Law Review.

The increase in frequency of publication, occasioned by continued growth in its specialized field of public law, will enable the Law Review better to serve the legal profession by more timely and adequate presentation of materials.

Student Bar Association

To enable Law students to become acquainted with problems of the profession, to develop better professional ideals and to make closer contacts with the members of the profession, there has been set up in the Law School this year a Student Bar Association. The Association is organized along lines analogous to the "integrated bar plan" now in force in a number of the States under which each lawyer must be a member of the Bar Association.

Among the activities planned are the holding of lectures by legal specialists, the publication of a small, informal Law School journal and the formation of committees to effect closer contact between members of the student body and the profession. Graduates of the Law School who are active in the Junior Bar Association will be asked to assist in this latter activity.

The fee for membership in the Association which is charged all Law students entitles each to receive annually the eight issues of the Law Review and to take part in the other activities of the Association.

Organization of the Student Bar Association is in pursuance of the principle that the lawyer begins his legal work not upon admission to the bar but when he becomes a student of the law, Dean Van Vleck explained. Said the Dean: "The bar frequently is spoken of as consisting of three branches—bar, bench and teachers of the law. Actually it includes a fourth branch, the students of law. There is need in the Law School for more professional activities outside of the classroom, more corporate activity of a professional and social nature and closer familiarity with the Law Review and with other legal publications such as the American Bar Association Journal, Journal of the American Judicature Society, etc. The Student Bar Association is designed to meet these needs."

Candidates for the degree of Doctor of Education will work directly with these experts in the preparation of theses.

These new Adjunct Professors are: Sidney Bartlett Hall, Ph.D., superintendent of public instruction of the State of Virginia; William Carson Ryan, Ph.D., president of the Progressive Education Association and member of the staff of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching; Thomas Warrington Gosling, Ph.D., assistant superintendent of schools of the District; Chester Winfield Holmes, Ed.D., assistant superintendent of schools of the District; Julia Letheld Hahn, Ph.D., supervising principal of the third division of the District public schools; Maris Marion Proffitt, Ph.D., specialist in industrial education of the United States Office of Education; Benjamin Franklin Kyker, A.M., of the United States Office of Education; and Meredith Chester Wilson, B.S., principal agriculturalist in charge of extension studies, United States Department of Agriculture.

The program for the Master's degree in Education likewise is undergoing certain changes. According to Dean Fox, the work has been made more specific; not in the sense of narrow specialization, but rather in bearing more upon practical problems and less upon educational theory.

In furtherance of the policy of emphasizing a clinical approach to the study of education, members of the resident Faculty have been joined by active workers in the field in giving a number of the courses.

Journalism Courses

Response to the courses in Journalism which were instituted by the University last year led to an expansion this fall of offerings in the field. New courses were added, and three new members were appointed to the teaching staff of the Department of Journalism.

The new appointees are Nathan Robertson, Marcelle LeMénager Lane and Charles Frederick Moore, all with the rank of Lecturer in Journalism. Edward Joseph Duffy, who was appointed last year to take charge of the work, continues as executive officer of the Department of Journalism.

Mr. Robertson, who gives the course in Advanced Reporting, has covered a number of the major news stories of the last decade as reporter for the United Press and the Associated Press. He is now senior specialist in information and assistant director of the division of information, Farm Security Administration. Mr. Robertson is a graduate of the University of Michigan.

A new course in Feature Writing is given by Mrs. Lane, a graduate of the University and director of the University Press Bureau.

Mr. Moore, a graduate of Dartmouth College, is in charge of the new course in Advertising. Now on the staff of the Washington Post, he formerly was with The Nation's Business, publication of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, in Washington and New York.

Library Science

Professor Alfred Francis William Schmidt, member of the Faculty for thirty-two years and Director of the Division of Library Science since 1927, retired in June.

"For more than three decades he has devotedly served The George Washington University and has won for himself the hearty thanks of scores upon scores of students," read the citation with which the status of Professor Emeritus was conferred upon him.

Three lecturers were appointed this fall to carry on the work in Library Science.

Lester A. Smith, A.M. in L.S., was named Lecturer in Library Science and Executive Officer of the Department. Mr. Smith, who also serves as Alumni Secretary of the University, gives the courses in Classification, Reference and Bibliography.

Adelaide Hasse, bibliographer of the Works Progress Administration, gives the course in Public Documents.

The course in Cataloguing is in charge of Belknap Severance, A.M. in L.S., head cataloguer of the United States Patent Office.

Professor Richardson

With the following citation, read by the President of the University, the status of Professor Emeritus was conferred upon Professor Edward Elliott Richardson at the Commencement exercises in June:

"You came to us from Vermont and entered Columbian College in 1892. Near the beginning of the twentieth century you began teaching in your chosen field of learning. This you did because you loved teaching, for at the same time you carried on your life's labor in the ministry of the Gospel. Recently you were honored for your service of a quarter of a century in the church, and now, as you come in your University life to the days of counseling rather than of active participation, upon the recommendation of the Board of Trustees, I confer upon you the honored status of Professor Emeritus of Philosophy."

Art Courses

Three new critic teachers and an additional lecturer were appointed this fall in the Department of Art, increasing to seven the staff of instruction.

The enlargement of the staff makes possible development of the "workshop idea" in the classes in Illustration, Commercial Art, Interior Decorating and Drawing and Painting. One critic is present in the drafting room at all times to give help as needed. It is the aim, however, to encourage the student to express his own personality through his work rather than to have all conform to arbitrary critical standards.

The new critic teachers are:

Rowland Lyon, A.B. 29, A.M. 32, The George Washington University. Mr. Lyon is one of the striking artists of the younger group. His paintings have been shown frequently in Washington and elsewhere. In addition to his work at George Washington he has worked at the Corcoran Gallery of Art and with Hawthorne at the Provincetown colony. He is a commercial artist on the staff of the Washington Evening Star.

Philip Fletcher Bell, A.B. 30, The George Washington University; B.F.A. 33, Yale University. Mr. Bell painted the murals in McKinley High School, Washington, which have attracted wide and favorable attention. He is in charge of the Children's Gallery of the Works Progress Administration.

Mary Thoenen, considered one of the outstanding young artists of Washington in poster work and illustration. Miss Thoenen had her own school in Evanston last year and has taught at a number of summer colonies.

Elizabeth Lewis, a graduate of Western Maryland College, who is chief of the fine arts division of the Public Library. Miss Lewis has written frequently upon art subjects and has built up a remarkable collection of colored reproductions of the old and modern masters. She is giving the lectures in the History of Art course.

Myrta Williams and Donald Kline continue as members of the staff of the Department of Art, which is headed by Professor Norris I. Crandall.

School of Pharmacy

The School of Pharmacy has two new full-time members of the Faculty: Charles Owens Wilson, Ph.D., Assistant Professor of Pharmaceutical Chemistry, and Lea Gene Gramling, Ph.D., Assistant Professor of Pharmacology and Pharmacognosy.

There have also been added to the staff as Lecturers three nationally known leaders of the profession: James J. Durrett, M.D., chief of the drug division of the United States Food and Drug Administration; Evander Frank Kelly, M.D., secretary of the American Pharmaceutical Association; and Carson Peter Frailey, Ph.D., president of the National Drug Trade Conference and executive vice president of the American Drug Manufacturers Association.

Other Faculty Additions

Other new full-time members of the Faculty are:

Corinne Cooper, A.B., M.D. The George Washington University, Associate University Physician.

Alan Hisey, B.S., M.S., Ph.D. University of Tennessee, Instructor in Biochemistry.

Briefer Mention

Ross McLaury Taylor, Ph.D., newly appointed Instructor in English, is the author of a novel, Brazos, published last spring, which has been received with great favor by critics. The novel, a story of pioneer days in the Southwest, was written by Dr. Taylor as his doctoral dissertation at the University of Iowa.

Dean William C. Van Vleck has been appointed a member of the Committee on Noteworthy Changes in Statute Law of the American Bar Association.

¶ Members of the Faculty who returned this semester from sabbatical leave are: Professor S. Chesterfield Oppenheim, of the Law School Faculty; Professor George M. Churchill, of the History Department; Professor Anna Pearl Cooper, of the English Department; Professor Alan T. Deibert, of the Department of Romance Languages; and Professor John Donaldson, of the Economics Department. Professor Henry G. Roberts of the Department of Public Speaking, who was absent on leave during the academic year 1937-38, also has returned to his teaching post.

¶ At the height of the Czechoslovakian crisis in October thousands of persons in and near Washington listened in upon the series of lectures by Dean Elmer Louis Kayser, broadcast by WMAL, the Evening Star station, to give the historical background of events. Later, in response to requests from the radio audience, the Star published the full text of Dean Kayser's lectures.

¶ American Government, by Assistant Dean Warren Reed West, was published this fall and is being used in the introductory courses in Political Science. A new, functional approach to the study of Government is made in this text.

¶ Dr. George Gamow, Professor of Theoretical Physics, who recently announced a new theory as to the energy source and evolution of stars, was presented by the University in three illustrated lectures on Astronomy, November 7, 14 and 21.

¶ Robert V. Fleming, Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the University, and Edward K. Morris, who because of his keen interest in sports coached baseball at George Washington for a number of years, were made honorary members of Omicron Delta Kappa at initiation ceremonies held October 18.

¶ An elaborate Freshman Week program, organized and carried out by a committee headed by the freshman director of the Student Council, introduced new students to the University in September.

¶ The George Washington Union, student political forum, was reorganized and renamed this year and is now known as the George Washington Congress. Under the new system as many as seven parties may be represented in the Congress, and the parties bear labels more familiar in American political life than the former party designations, Right, Center and Left. This year the Congress is composed of forty-one Liberal Democrats, twenty-three Farmer Laborites, twenty-two Progressives and fourteen Liberal Republicans.

C. OSCAR BERRY,
Secretary-Treasurer

Medical Society

The George Washington University Medical Society held the first meeting of its thirty-fifth year at the auditorium of the School of Medicine the evening of October 15. Dr. Frank E. Adair, one of the country's outstanding cancer authorities, came down from New York to address the Society and to play a leading role in the "Town Hall" discussion on "Cancer of the Breast," which constituted the second part of the scientific program. The panel of local physicians taking part in the discussion included Doctors R. J. Bosworth, E. R. Whitmore, A. C. Christie and H. H. Kerr. Nearly two hundred physicians attended the meeting and the buffet supper that followed—one of the largest audiences on record!

During the past summer, the Society's officers have been hard at work on program schedules, treasurer's audit and secretary's membership records.

Dr. Arnold McNitt, Vice President and in charge of programs, who was largely responsible for the success of the first meeting, has a schedule of future programs worthy of the interest of all medical alumni.

The President, Dr. Oscar B. Hunter, and the Secretary have in the last six weeks added nearly seventy-five names to the Society's membership.

If these lines reach graduates of the Medical and Dental Schools who are not familiar with the aims of the George Washington University Medical Society, we wish they would communicate with Dr. Leslie H. French, Secretary, Suite 215, 1726 I Street, Washington, D.C. Our desire is to keep medical and dental alumni (1) well-informed professionally, (2) up-to-date as to Medical School activities, (3) interested in the comings and goings of their classmates and teachers.

LESLIE H. FRENCH,
Secretary

Library Science Alumni Association

The Association opened its 1938-39 season with a banquet in honor of Professor Alfred F. W. Schmidt, the retiring Director of the Division of Library Science, at the club house of the American Association of University Women, on June 7. Guests were Director and Mrs. Alfred F. W. Schmidt, Mrs. Joshua Evans, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Feiker, Miss Elizabeth A. Lathrop, and Miss Adelaide R. Hasse, Lecturer in Library Science at the University. About 110 students and alumni were in attendance. Director Schmidt was presented with an original painting of an interior of the Library of Congress as it appeared in 1897, when located in the Capitol. Honorary membership in the Association was awarded to Miss Hasse.

The Executive Committee has held special meetings with President Cloyd H. Marvin this year to discuss the future of the work in Library Science. At Dr. Marvin's suggestion a special committee to study the special needs for a library school in Washington was appointed by Dorothy Corson, President of the Association. Members of this committee were William Heers, chairman; Fern Hyatt, Margaret Maltby, Frances Hall, Clara Egli, and Leila Fern. The study consisted of a survey of library schools in the United States, prepared by Margaret Maltby, and a questionnaire regarding the need for professional training in the District sent to approximately seventy-five librarians in the District of Columbia. A complete report of the results of this study was submitted to President Marvin in November.

The first fall meeting of the Association was held on Wednesday, November 2, at the Taft House Inn, with Dr. Arthur W. Hummel, chief of the Orientalia Division of the Library of Congress, as guest speaker. Dr. Hummel's topic was "The Development of the Chinese Book." Other events will include a formal midwinter party in December, a tea in January, a picnic, and the final luncheon meeting in the spring of 1939.

LEILA FERN,
Secretary

Engineer Alumni Association

The third annual meeting and banquet of the Engineer Alumni Association was held on April 26, 1938, with about 50 per cent of the membership present—a splendid attendance. The officers elected for the ensuing year were Edwin A. Schmitt, President; William F. Roeser, Vice President; Lawrence G. Walter, Secretary-Treasurer; Howard S. Cole, Corresponding Secretary; and Benjamin C. Cruickshanks, H. Velpeau Darling and Roy F. Carty, members of the Executive Committee.

A most interesting talk on the activities and facilities of the National Advisory Committee on Aeronautics at Langley Field, Virginia, was given by Dr. George L. Lewis, director of the committee. Dr. Lewis' talk was illustrated by slides and motion pictures. An enjoyable musical program was given by members of the University Quartet.

During the past winter an increase of membership of about 25 per cent was attained by the Association. This winter a further effort will be made to augment the membership. All engineering alumni as well as recent engineering graduates are urged to affiliate with the Engineer Alumni Association. Application to the Alumni Secretary at the University will facilitate becoming a member of the Engineer Association.

Plans for a limited winter program of Association activities are being formulated and will be announced later.

EDWIN A. SCHMITT,

School of Nursing Alumnae

On September 13, 1938, the first fall meeting of the George Washington University Hospital Nurses Alumnae Association was held at the Hospital. This meeting was called to order by Mrs. Rose Heffron Goodman, the new President. After the regular order of business had been satisfactorily disposed of it was decided that the Nurses Alumnae Association would sponsor a series of bridge parties and a dance for the winter social activities. The President urged all members to join the Red Cross through the Nurses Alumnae Association Unit. Refreshments were served and the meeting adjourned.

The next meeting will be held the second Tuesday in November at the Hospital, for the election of officers.

Nomination of Alumni Trustees

The Board of Trustees at its regular meeting, October 13, approved a simplified procedure for the nomination of Alumni Trustees, in response to a request made by the Executive Committee of the General Alumni Association. The regulations as amended provide for the use of one ballot, containing not less than two nor more than four times as many names as there are vacancies to be filled. These names are to be chosen by the Executive Committee of the General Alumni Association and the ballots sent to qualified electors before the first of May of each year.

The balloting last May for Alumni Trustees resulted in the reelection to the Board of Howard Wilkinson Hodgkins, B.S. in C.E. (w.d.) 13, LL.B. 16, patent attorney; and John Edgar Hoover, LL.B. 16, LL.M. 17, LL.D. 35, Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Two alumni made generous gifts of books and other printed material to the University Library in October, according to John R. Mason, University Librarian.

Charles Edward Munroe, Ph.D. 94, LL.D. 12, Professor Emeritus of Chemistry, who for many years has given the Library an extensive series of periodicals, has presented his entire personal library on chemistry and explosives. It consists of 505 bound volumes, 2627 unbound volumes and pamphlets, 42 cases of clippings, and many hundreds of clippings in envelopes.

Denver Alumni Club

Alumni of the University living in Colorado welcomed the football team Friday, October 12, when they arrived for the game with the University of Colorado. Members of the team were taken on a drive through the mountains near Denver and on the "Look-out Road." The next day the alumni had the pleasure of seeing George Washington defeat the University of Colorado at Boulder, 13-0.

Officers of the Club received the thanks of President Marvin for their activity and the hospitality extended to the team and coaches.

Los Angeles Alumni Club

A dinner meeting and conference of Los Angeles Alumni Club members was held November 3 at the Rosslyn Hotel to hear the Honorable Culbert L. New York Alumni

On October 17 a number of alumni living in New York City gathered at the home of Mr. Fritz von Briesen, 280 Park Avenue. At this meeting it was decided to organize an active group of alumni who would work for the welfare of the University in the metropolitan area, to be known as "Minute Men of The George Washington University, New York Alumni." The officers for the present are: President, Mr. von Briesen; Vice President, Nelson Littell; Corresponding Secretary, John Lathrop; and Treasurer, George Pollard.

An outline of the activities to be covered by the "Minute Men," prepared by George Pollard, was discussed by Vernon Brown, Eugene Thomas, David Ligon, Charles Pollard, and William Knosher. Four main committees were appointed to carry on the work proposed:

1. University Program Committee: William V. Knosher, chairman. Its purpose is to see that any program or function in this area sponsored by the University is properly attended. The committee will organize an educational program designed to influence students of a high type to enter George Washington.

2. Committee on Alumni Members of University Societies: David Ligon, chairman. This committee will seek to enlist the interest of alumni members of fraternities, sororities and other University societies in the activities of the New York Alumni Club, thus utilizing the loyalty and experience in cooperation developed through membership in such University organizations.

3. Orientation of Graduates upon Becoming Residents in the New York Area: Charles Pollard, chairman. This committee will assist graduates to make the best of the vocational, social and cultural opportunities that are presented in New York City.

4. University Publicity: Eugene Thomas, chairman. It will be the duty of this committee to see that the University obtains favorable publicity through the newspapers, radio, etc., by opportune use of current events. The committee will also strive to promote football games and other University activities in this area.

We had the pleasure of having with us at this meeting Lester Smith, Alumni Secretary, who told us of current developments at the University and urged as many as possible to return to the Homecoming Game on Thanksgiving Day. A letter was read from Roy Lever, President of the Interfraternity Council, inviting the New York alumni to attend the Homecoming celebrations. Several of our group plan to attend these affairs.

The next meeting of the "Minute Men" will be held in February. The basketball team is playing two games in this vicinity, Army at West Point, February 25, and St. John's in Brooklyn, March 4. We expect to have a good turn-out at these games.

VERNON BROWN,

The Alumni Secretary praised the part played by students from Utah in the life of the University, recalling particularly the encouragement former Senator Smoot had given to young men from his State who desired to study in Washington. Other speakers included Dr. Arthur C. Wherry, representing the Scottish Rite Masons of Salt Lake City, and Dr. George Thomas, President of the University of Utah. Dr. Thomas in his remarks referred to the fine record of President Marvin, terming him an able and outstanding educator. Vocal numbers were given by Mrs. Arthur Woolley of Ogden, Utah.

Arrangements for the meeting were made by Vernon L. Romney and Carl A. Badger, members of the National Alumni Council.

Pacing the Colonials in Sports

By John R. Busick
Director of Sports Publicity

G.W. vs. G.U.

A MAJOR step of the Department of Athletics in furthering its policy of renewing relationships with neighboring institutions was accomplished this fall with the signing of a two-year agreement in football with Georgetown University. The first game in the new series is to be played on October 28, 1939, and the second, in 1940. Varsity basketball and baseball teams representing the two institutions also will meet next year, and freshman competition is planned in all sports. There have been reports that the basketball relationship with Georgetown would be opened this year.

The game next football season between George Washington and Georgetown should have tremendous interest for the alumni and students. It is doubtful if any game the University has played in years has stimulated its followers as much as will a contest with Georgetown. Already the sports writers of Washington are speculating as to what will be the probable comparative strength of the two elevens a year from now and what the outcome may be. Prompted by the great interest in local rivalries which has been manifested here in the last year, the two institutions received high praise from public and press when announcement of the renewal of relationships was made.

George Washington and Georgetown last met on the gridiron in 1923 when the Hoyas were victorious by the score of 20 to 0. Football historians were surprised to learn that the first game between the schools was played in 1890 when Georgetown won, 6 to 0. From 1890 to 1923, ten games were played and Georgetown was victorious in all except that of 1907, when the teams played to a scoreless tie.

The series was discontinued in 1923, partly because of Georgetown's clear superiority and partly because at that time the University's annual game with Catholic University, discontinued after 1930, aroused greater interest in the University and in the city generally. Until 1930 Georgetown remained among the strongest teams in the East. After that, however, the Hoyas declined rapidly while the George Washington elevens became more powerful. During the past three years the teams have been on a par, which fact leads observers to believe that the series will be quite even and keenly contested. This season both teams play Bucknell and West Virginia, providing an opportunity for interesting comparisons.

The basketball relationship with Georgetown also should be colorful, for it will match the teams of two outstanding coaches, Bill Reinhart and Elmer Ripley. Both have fine records. This year is Ripley's first on the Hilltop since 1929. He left Georgetown that year to join the Yale staff. While George Washington's court teams under Reinhart the past three years have compiled much better records than those of Georgetown, the Hoya supporters believe they will climb back to the top with Ripley again at the helm. This rivalry will attract considerable attention not only in Washington but throughout the East, because in recent years basketball teams of both institutions have achieved high ranking.

Whatever the outcome of these contests in various sports, the renewal of rivalry promises a number of outstanding athletic events for the alumni and students to follow. This renewal need not be just a two-year affair, but, with the proper interest and support, can continue for years to come.

Basketball with Maryland

The announcement of the Georgetown agreement brought considerable discussion of the possibility of developing other near-by relationships. Earlier the Department of Athletics had announced scheduling of games with the University of Maryland in freshman football and varsity basketball. Representatives of the schools met last year in freshman basketball and tennis. The varsity basketball game with Maryland, to be played in the McKinley High gym on February 22, is expected to be one of the outstanding games of the Washington season. It is the first time in more than twenty years that these teams have clashed in basketball.

For the past several years the afternoon game scheduled on Washington's birthday has been an attractive part of the Winter Convocation program. Since that day is a holiday, and because of the unusual interest in a game involving George Washington and Maryland universities, this year's game should prove the most attractive of the home schedule.

The Football Season

Bill Reinhart started his first season as head football coach at the University with the youngest, most inexperienced and probably the smallest squad in ten years. It was not the smallest in numbers, but in poundage and height its shortcomings were obvious to the casual observer. Yet this squad was undefeated, untied and unscored on in its first four games, boasted an impressive victory over the University of Colorado and was labeled by the Washington press as "the best drilled George Washington team in five years." This comment followed its second game, a decisive 26 to 0 triumph over Butler University, of Indianapolis.

As the season wore on, however, it became apparent that the power and weight in the squad was not sufficient to cope with that of several of our opponents. The one-sided defeats handed the Colonials by Ole Miss and Clemson, two nationally ranked teams, may be largely attributed to this cause. Since this was the first season under a new athletic policy and the first under a new coaching regime, experimentation along many lines was necessary. Under the circumstances, the record of five victories in nine games, with triumphs over Colorado and Kansas heading the list, was satisfactory. The improved play and fine spirit shown in the West Virginia game, although the Colonials lost 7-6, also added to the squad's credit. Many believed this the best game played by G.W. all season.

A Brief Grid Review

The Colonials opened their 1938 season none too auspiciously with a 7 to 0 victory over Furman, but followed up this typical first-game performance with a 26-0 triumph over a Butler team that had been strong enough the previous week to give Purdue considerable trouble. In beating Butler, the Colonials unleashed a second-half attack that accounted for three touchdowns. It was the most impressive offensive display by a George Washington team in years.

With Bob Nowaskey, Vic Sampson and Billy Richardson sparkling on the offensive, and the entire line, led by Guy Renzaglia and Sunny Jones, playing brilliantly, the George Washington team showed great promise and drew considerable praise from the press for its fine play. The Colonials rolled up 323 yards from scrimmage and 54 on passes to Butler's total of 32 via both departments. The results of this game led to the prediction of great things for this eleven.

Some of the fire from this performance was carried into the Colorado game the following week when the Colonials traveled out to Boulder, Colorado, and chalked up their third consecutive victory by a score of 13 to 0. The entire trip was an outstanding success from every standpoint. The trip on the streamlined train from Chicago to Denver, the hospitality of the University of Colorado officials and the people of Denver and the warm, enthusiastic welcome of our alumni in Colorado, combined with that victory, all added up to a wonderfully successful trip. Commander Bratton and the Denver alumni really did themselves proud!

In the first period of the Colorado game, the Colonials drove straight down the field after the kick-off for a touchdown. The march was culminated in Vic Sampson's 13-yard slash off right tackle for a touchdown. Late in the fourth quarter, the Colonials struck again, this time with unexpected suddenness, when John Tonkavitch, stubby sophomore fullback, ripped right through the center of the Colorado line for a 61-yard touchdown sprint. It was a well-played contest, with Bob Nowaskey again leading the George Washington line.

The Colorado conquest was followed by a natural let-down and the next week against Davis and Elkins, easiest team on the schedule, it took the Buff-and-Blue-clad boys the first half to swing into serious action. Then they turned on some power and finally swept the Senators before them, winning 27 to 0.

In its fifth game, with the powerful University of Mississippi squad, the 1938 Buff eleven was soundly beaten, 25 to 0. After a scoreless first half, which closed with a crowd of 12,000 wildly applauding their magnificent defensive play, the Colonials were overpowered in the second half by a brilliant, swift-moving offense which utilized manpower to great advantage and, in the final analysis, simply carried too many big guns for Bill Reinhart's crew. It was the old story of "good big men being better than good little men."

It is possible that the Colonials underrated Clemson. At least they started the game carelessly and on the first play from scrimmage, Banks McFadden, lanky Clemson halfback, ripped around right end into the clear for a 66-yard touchdown sprint. That was the first of three long touchdown runs and the Tigers closed on the long end of a 26-0 count. George Washington led in first downs, and threatened seriously to score as the game ended, but the team was clearly outclassed.

After two successive defeats, Coach Reinhart shook up the line-up for the Kansas game and was rewarded with a 9-7 victory. The Jayhawkers displayed a fine offensive, but after the Colonials held them for downs on the goal in the first half, the K.U. boys lost some of their drive. They came back to tie the score, 7-7, in the third period. Tony Barauskas, reserve tackle, then insured victory for G.W. in the last quarter by blocking a Kansas punt, the ball rolling over the end zone for a safety.

In this game, the Colonials showed considerable courage and made absolutely the most of their scoring opportunities. Vic Sampson emerged from a short slump to pace the Buff boys in victory. The 100-piece Kansas band put on one of the greatest between-the-halves shows ever staged here and brought cheers from the crowd.

At Bucknell, the Colonials ran into the worst football weather in several years and a Bucknell homecoming tradition which they could not overcome. Ten fumbles, four of which the Bisons recovered, a blocked punt and failure to make a single first down adequately explains the 16-0 defeat. It was Bucknell's ninth straight homecoming triumph. In Bill Lane and Lou Tomasetti, the Bisons had two excellent backs. Lane quarterbacked a fine game.

Seven seniors, six of them regulars, completed their college grid careers as the Colonials closed the season here with West Virginia. Vic Sampson and Frank Merka, backs; Guy Renzaglia, Hal Schiering and Izzy Weinberg, guards; Captain John Rebholz, tackle; and Bob Faris, end, put on a desperate drive against the Mountaineers, but their efforts fell one point shy of a tie. Rebholz, regular right tackle for three seasons, probably played the best game of his career. It was unfortunate that a most unpopular and seemingly unfair decision on pass interference gave West Virginia its only score.

While it was gratifying to close a somewhat disappointing season with a spirited, well-played game, the most encouraging part of the Homecoming battle was the play of several men who will be back again next season. Wilbur Saeger, giant junior tackle, was in the starting line-up for the first time and played nearly the entire game. Line Coach Botchey Koch was pleased with Saeger's rapid improvement and also with the fine play of Vance Adler, lanky sophomore, at center.

In the backfield, Billy Richardson, another junior, took over the ball-carrying and signal calling duties when Sampson left the game with an injury, and sparked the team on its touchdown drive. Richardson's passing with a wet ball was remarkable. His selection of plays was sound and it appears that he is the quarterback the team has needed badly the last two years.

The Homecoming Game with West Virginia on Thanksgiving Day was the feature of the schedule not only because of the many alumni activities surrounding this contest, but because of the rivalry established between these institutions in the past five years. This was the fifth game in the recent series between the schools. George Washington was victorious in the first three, but last season the Mountaineers rose up in all their might to trounce the Colonials, 26 to 0, at Morgantown. They were anxious to atone for those three consecutive victories by George Washington.

To review briefly the previous games in this rivalry: George Washington invaded Morgantown in 1934 in the first game between the teams since 1920 and walked off with a 10-7 triumph. Captain Harry Deming's field goal was the margin of victory, and Ben Plotnicki, sub for Tuffy Leemans, placed George Washington twice in scoring territory with two long runs. Incidentally, Plotnicki now is coaching at the Fredericksburg, Virginia, High School and apparently doing a splendid piece of work.

In 1935, the Mountaineers came to Washington gunning for victory and they displayed a powerful attack, indeed. Although the statistics favored West Virginia, they paid off, as usual, on the score which placed George Washington on top, 15 to 7. Two long runs following pass interceptions by Ben Plotnicki and Herb Reeves did the trick.

The 1936 game was the best played and the most bitterly contested in the entire series. George Washington won, 7 to 2, only after sixty minutes of grueling, smashing football. This game also was played here. The hard-earned victory closed the Colonials' most successful campaign in the matter of games won and lost since the famed season of 1908. The first half of this '36 contest was fairly even, both teams definitely demonstrating that they would be hard to score on. In the second half, with Joey Kaufman and Herb Reeves paving the way, George Washington finally pushed across for a touchdown after keeping possession of the ball almost the entire half and running the statistics into dizzy totals.

Last year, the Colonials marched on Morgantown following their surprise tie with the University of Arkansas, and ran into West Virginia's best team in years. The Mountaineers lost only one game the entire season, to Pittsburgh, and were victorious in the Sun Bowl game with Texas Tech by a 7-6 score. The Colonials paid tribute to West Virginia's fine team by voting it the strongest club they played all season, including Alabama's Rose Bowl team.

This year, with expectations of an even greater season, the Mountaineers ran into several early-season snags in the form of great Pittsburgh and Michigan State outfits, but at that placed a well-versed, powerful eleven on the field for the Homecoming Game. In Harry Clark and Sam Audia the Mountaineers have two truly fine backs. This pair led Marshall Glenn's team to easy victories over West Virginia Wesleyan, Creighton and Youngstown, and to a tie with Washington and Lee.

Outstanding Player

Bob Nowaskey, the husky junior end who hails from Scottdale, Pennsylvania, and scales about 190, proved repeatedly that he was the team's finest individual player and possibly the most valuable performer this season in District of Columbia college ranks.

Last year, Coach Reinhart apparently had moved off the deep end by predicting an outstanding grid career for Bob, although the latter was just entering his sophomore year. Nowaskey was moved from end to fullback at the start of his first varsity season, and it was not until late in the campaign that he showed the progress and form expected and predicted for him by Reinhart. In the last two games, however, Bob really began to lug that ball from the fullback position. This year, with a shortage of experienced ends and no dearth of backs, Bob was shifted back to a wing. Immediately he began to play top-notch ball, particularly as an offensive performer.

He led Washington's college scorers part of the season, an unusual rank for an end, and stood out as a ball carrier, running on end-around plays. His experience and speed made him a decided threat every time he ran the ball, either as a pass receiver or on the usual reverse plays from his end position. On defense, he spilled interference and made nearly half the tackles, playing truly remarkable defensive ball against every team and particularly against Mississippi. With Sam Babich, an outstanding sophomore on the other flank, George Washington boasted its finest pair of ends in years!

Basketball Again!

Within a few short weeks the regular football season will be closed and cold weather will drive our sports fans indoors, more than likely into gymnasiums to watch the fast, well-drilled Colonial basketball team. In the past three seasons with Coach Bill Reinhart at the helm our basketball teams have hung up the excellent record of forty-five victories in fifty-seven games, including triumphs over the fine teams representing Minnesota, Ohio State, Nebraska, Army, Loyola of Chicago and St. John's of Brooklyn, the two last-named being among the best teams in their respective locales, although not as well known in other athletic lines. So we have come to expect big things from our squads, both freshman and varsity.

To insure the basketball squad of plenty of work in the late fall when Reinhart still was busy with his football duties, Milt Schonfeld, an outstanding member of Reinhart's first two teams here, was engaged as assistant varsity coach. Schonfeld called the first practice on October 20 and kept the Colonial cagers hustling along for their first game with Ohio State at Columbus, December 10.

Schonfeld, despite his notable lack of height and weight, was considered by Coach Reinhart one of the best players he ever coached and it is felt he will do an excellent job as an assistant coach. Milt is an excellent judge of basketball material and already has proved himself an industrious worker.

The prospects for this year's team are good. Only Captain Tommy O'Brien is missing from last year's squad, which won thirteen of seventeen games and defeated Minnesota and Ohio State on successive nights.

A strong sophomore group is expected from last year's undefeated freshman team, one of the best ever turned out by Coach Otts Zahn. The departure of O'Brien, however, means considerably more than the graduation of just an average basketball player. Coach Reinhart called Tommy his finest captain in twelve years of coaching, and there is no doubt that the chunky Irish lad from Jersey City was a fine player, one of the best ever to wear the colors of a District of Columbia team.

As a nucleus, five letter-winners, four of them regulars, are at hand this season. Bob Faris, last season's high scorer, lanky Jack Butterworth, a dependable center, and Sid Silkowitz, a guard, all seniors, head the list of returning players. George Garber, an outstanding first-year man last winter, and Reds Auerbach, who saw much service as a reserve, complete the group of letter-winners. This quintet is fast, capable and experienced and probably will be the starting unit.

Clamoring for action right now and likely to get plenty of it as the season wears on are Eddie Amendola and Joe Comer, stars of last season's fast freshman squad. Amendola is considered an excellent prospect from every standpoint. Comer, a local boy, graduate of Roosevelt High, has height and is potentially a fine shot. Then there are a half-dozen squad members from a year ago available again, several of them fine prospects and likely to blossom forth with added experience.

A schedule of nineteen games, with a number of imposing newcomers, has been arranged. Maryland tops the list at home, while the feature of the road schedule is a two-day trip to Army and Colgate. Clemson, Ohio University, Western Reserve and Bradley Tech, with Colgate, are the outstanding newcomers. Washington and Lee is back on the card after several years' absence. Ohio State, Toledo, West Virginia, Washington and Jefferson, Wayne of Detroit and St. John's of Brooklyn just about conclude the list.
